Introduction

Knowledge of foreign languages is the most important means of communication between people. The study of foreign languages teaches and encourages respect for other nations, it fosters an understanding of the interrelation of language and human nature.

The statement of basic material

Today, everyone understands the importance of knowing languages. Languages give you the opportunity to become successful in any sphere of life. Foreign language study enhances one's opportunities in government, business, medicine, law, technology, military, industry, marketing, etc. Learning a foreign language will improve your chances of getting a job or entering university.

Foreign languages open the door to art, music, dance, fashion, cuisine, film, philosophy, science. Thanks to the languages you know, you have a chance to get to know other countries, people and their culture. Dealing with another culture enables people to gain a more profound understanding of their own culture.

You will be able to change your habits and views on the world. Foreign language study will completely change your traveling experience. The study of foreign languages boots confidence. You will become confident when you are in another country.

For example, when you enter another country, you must issue documents in English or in the language of the country to which you have arrived. Often, when you stay for a long time in the country, you need to know the language .

While I was in Austria, I often had to deal with documents related to staying, housing,shopping, going to the gym, hospital, etc. It is good for you if you know how to use public transport. You must understand when, where and what will happen, and you must also follow certain rules when visiting restaurants, museums, the cinema or the opera, and various events. You need to know the basics, for example how to get somewhere or what the names of products or dishes are to buy something or order in a restaurant, ask how much it costs to pay for the service.

It is necessary to underline the academic mobility of students as a form of secondary socialization of the individual. Students and teachers in higher education can move to another institution inside or outside their own country to study or to teach for a limited time. Academic mobility contributes to formation of basic competencies, development and improvement of professional mobility, creative, practical and innovative ideas.

Some people who choose to study abroad should take into account the admission requirements, you must choose a school, college or university and write an email to this institution to find out the admission rules. By the way, your language level must be high. For admission, you need to prepare for an interview with a university, having a good level of knowledge of the language and other sciences for admission, as well as being good at writing letters and emails, you will easily enter the university.

People who want to get a job abroad must have certain knowledge and especially the language to start working, but if you don't know the language, you will be sent to courses. You can find these courses yourself or you will be sent to courses offered by the educational institution or work. In Austria, Germany, there is a 'Sprachzentrum' where you can learn German to the level you need.

So, if you want to get a job where there will be communication in English or other languages, you will have to delve into professional vocabulary. Be able to express your thoughts correctly, use vocabulary related to your profession, to know how to draw up resumes, letters and other types of documents.

It's another matter when you travel. It's enough to know the most basic things so that those around you know what you need. People from another country do not always know the English language or Ukrainian so you better think about it. In fact, a basic level of English is enough for you to travel to any country in the world. Upon arrival in another country, without actually knowing the language, you will probably hire a tour guide who will show you the most banal places. Travelling with knowledge of the English language opens up unreal opportunities for you as a tourist. You don't need an interpreter to show and tell about the iconic places of the city. You do not depend on the opinion and program of the guide and can go to any institution, museum, theater or park.

In addition, you can get to know someone from the locals and listen to their stories, which will definitely not be in the excursion program. Knowing English helps you immerse yourself in the country's color and culture, and this is a great experience that shapes your personality. In addition to classic entertainment, travelling with knowledge of the English language allows you to get to know the native inhabitants of the city better. And they, in turn, can tell you about secret sights that are not available to an ordinary tourist.

Learning languages you will be able to ask questions; understand the sentences to be answered. Knowing the verbs of place, you will understand where to go, where to turn left and where to go up. Knowing modal verbs, you will be able to formulate questions correctly and politely.

Conclusion

Summarizing the above, we can say that in today's conditions, knowledge of foreign languages is not only a guarantee of a successful career, but also an indicator of a person's education, which allows you to communicate with foreigners and find friends from all over the world. In addition, a person also learns about the customs and traditions of the country whose language he is learning, gets acquainted with its history and culture. Studying or working in other country or city is a unique experience that allows us to enrich ourselves both personally and professionally.
